2 Samuel 22:50
O Lord, I will thank You among the nations; I will sing praises to Your name.

Greetings!

Praise God for:

-new beginnings. We walked through barn doors, into a wheat field chapel. We met Karlin our first summer at the lake, where she worked as housekeeper. She quickly became very dear to us; what a joy to celebrate with her in her marriage to Joel. The pastor declared it a mountain top experience, as we gazed over the endless prairie.

Please pray for:

-Tim and Ginny and their urgent need for housing. Once settled, Tim plans to begin translation work with C once again. It was a joy to visit with them recently.

-U's son, T, an MRI showed that cancer has not spread and is not the cause of excruciating pain he has been experiencing. The doctors feel that his surgeries are the cause. Shawn continues with chemo treatments.

-N, who is now able to do back translation work on her own, and for U as she steadily works on translation.

-Pierre as he prepares materials for Isidore and U for winter translation.

-the days ahead: winter is certainly giving strong hints of what is to come.

The forecast calls for some freezing temps in the week ahead and possible snow. We should be able to finish out our planned time here, but we do need to respect weather conditions. The end of this month, we plan to drive to eastern Montana where we store our truck and trailer, and work in beet harvest before we head home to Alaska for the winter.

A colleague, dear to us, wrote the following beautiful sentiment (based on 2 Samuel 22:50) recently:

“As I read this verse the other morning, it occurred to me that King David probably never imagined that the songs he composed would someday be translated into languages around the world. In this way his praising the Lord among the nations continues with each translation of his words.

In a real sense, all of us who support the Bible translation effort taking place around the world no matter what our part, are also praising the Lord among the nations. What an awesome thought!”

Thank you so very much as you partner with us in prayer, to bring His Word to the nations, and in particular, the first nations in North America. What a joy it is to see lives change when God's Word touches them, just as He touches us. May He bless and keep you.

In His Love,

Meggie and Pierre
