Isaiah 64:4 "For since the world began, no ear has heard, and no eye has seen a God like you, who works for those that who wait for you!"

Greetings!

Praise God for:

- N, who has joined our team as a back translation checker. She likes to hang out with Ui and jumped at the opportunity to spend time listening to the oral translation, then writing down in English what it says.
- Pierre and I and our (seemingly) unending pile of work with which to keep up. The view of Pierre in the picture is a pretty typical. Headphones on, he cleans up the oral translation recordings (gets rid of pauses, yawns, do overs, etc.) and then begins the slow process of transcription, putting down the oral into written. Once he is done with a chapter, I type that into the computer. I also type in U's and N's writing. When we do checking with W, I type in what she says as she says it as Pierre runs the audio. N is comfortable working the audio herself, so she can now do checking on her own.
- P and I took a speedy trip to Montana this week to bring back fabric that had been donated. What an incredible blessing, beyond what we could ask or think! P got to meet friends down there and we had a wonderful time.
- the opportunity several of our grandchildren had to attend summer Bible camp. Aimee finished her summer school in Seattle, and Marie and Jerimiah recently announced that we have a new grandchild on the way!

Please pray for:

- N as she moves forward with this task. Pray that the Lord blesses her efforts and meets her needs. We really enjoy spending time with her.
- U, as she continues with translation. Remember her family's urgent needs also.
- the results of a terrible omni-cell and/or tornado storm which hit a bit of eastern Montana and a lot of North Dakota. A stunning electrical storm kept my attention for over an hour in the night while we were down there. We learned later a 6 day old baby had perished, and many were injured along with horrific damage in a town 40 miles away. As we drove back into Canada, the town of Plentywood was shut down due to much damage.
- our co-laborers, Tim and Ginny. They plan to stay on their land for a while, but will need housing. We know the Lord is guiding them and His promise of provision is real.

May the Lord bless you, meet your every need and keep you close to Him. Please do pray the same for us.

In His Love

Meggie and Pierre
